NO PROPERTY TAX RATE INCREASE BOND!

A Message from our Superintendent

Dear Families and Community of Wyoming Public Schools,

A New Bond Proposal Is Slated to Bring Many Changes, but the One Thing That Will Stay the Same Is . . . NO PROPERTY TAX RATE INCREASE FROM THE CURRENT RATE

In November of 2017, Wyoming voters passed a bond proposal that would allow for a significant investment in the District's buildings, improving learning spaces for scholars for years to come. It paved the way to remodel and reconstruct outdated buildings throughout the District; bring them up to code; and improve security, air quality, and technology.

Soon after the bond passed, the work started. While it certainly would have been preferred to start all the work at once, that simply isn't possible. The design process for each building is extensive, and input from staff at each facility is used to ensure each building's unique needs are addressed. Additionally, school construction is typically confined to the summer months, meaning much larger crews are needed to concentrate the work within the several weeks of summer. The District would not find enough contractors to bid on our projects if we asked them to mobilize crews to every building in just one summer. So, working with our architects and construction managers, the work is broken up into manageable projects each year.

To date, all the high school scholars and our elementary school scholars at Parkview and Oriole Park are now learning in spaces that have been modernized and updated to current learning standards. This was all accomplished as promised: without raising the property tax rate for Wyoming taxpayers. West Elementary and Gladiola Elementary will be completed this summer, with Wyoming Intermediate, Wyoming Junior High, and Huntington Woods scheduled for work in 2023.

Why Another Bond?

Now, I know what you're thinking: Why wasn't the previous bond proposal enough to complete all the work across the District?

And the answer is . . . the bond proposal in 2017 was structured for an amount that would not require a tax rate increase. It was not for the amount required to complete all the needed work across the District.

Specifically, as one of the District's oldest and largest facilities, the Junior High requires more investment than can be made from the 2017 approval. With the funds set aside from 2017, the District could lightly renovate portions of the Junior High School. But having experienced the

In compliance with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, the Elliot-Larson Civil Rights Act of 1977, and the Americans with Disability Act of 1990, it is the policy of Wyoming Public School District that no person shall, on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry, sex, age, disability, height, weight, or marital status be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination during any program, activity, or in employment. The lack of English skills will not be barrier to admission or participation in educational programs. The following people have been designated to handle inquiries regarding the nondiscrimination policies. Inquiries related to discrimination on the basis of race, color, origin, age, height, weight, sex, or marital status should be directed to Mrs. Sarah Earnest, Assistant Superintendent for Employee Relations, 3575 Gladiola, Wyoming, MI 49519, (616) 530-7554. successful transformation of the High School, the District is asking the community to consider improvements to the Junior High as extensive as those made at Wyoming High School.

If approved, the current proposal would provide an additional $24.9 million for comprehensive renovations and the partial reconstruction of Wyoming Junior High School, a facility that has not seen major structural improvements in nearly forty-three years. And just like in 2017, if passed, this proposal will not raise the property tax rate above the current rate. The current millage rate (which has remained the same since 2016 and is currently lower than 14 of 20 Kent County school districts) would be extended into the future.

A Junior High that Mirrors the High School

The public's investment at Wyoming High School has completely transformed the property into a state-of-the-art educational facility.

These additional funds would allow for the same degree of transformation at the Junior High, an archaic building that is currently unable to support modern best practices in teaching and learning.

Renovations and reconstruction will include the following:

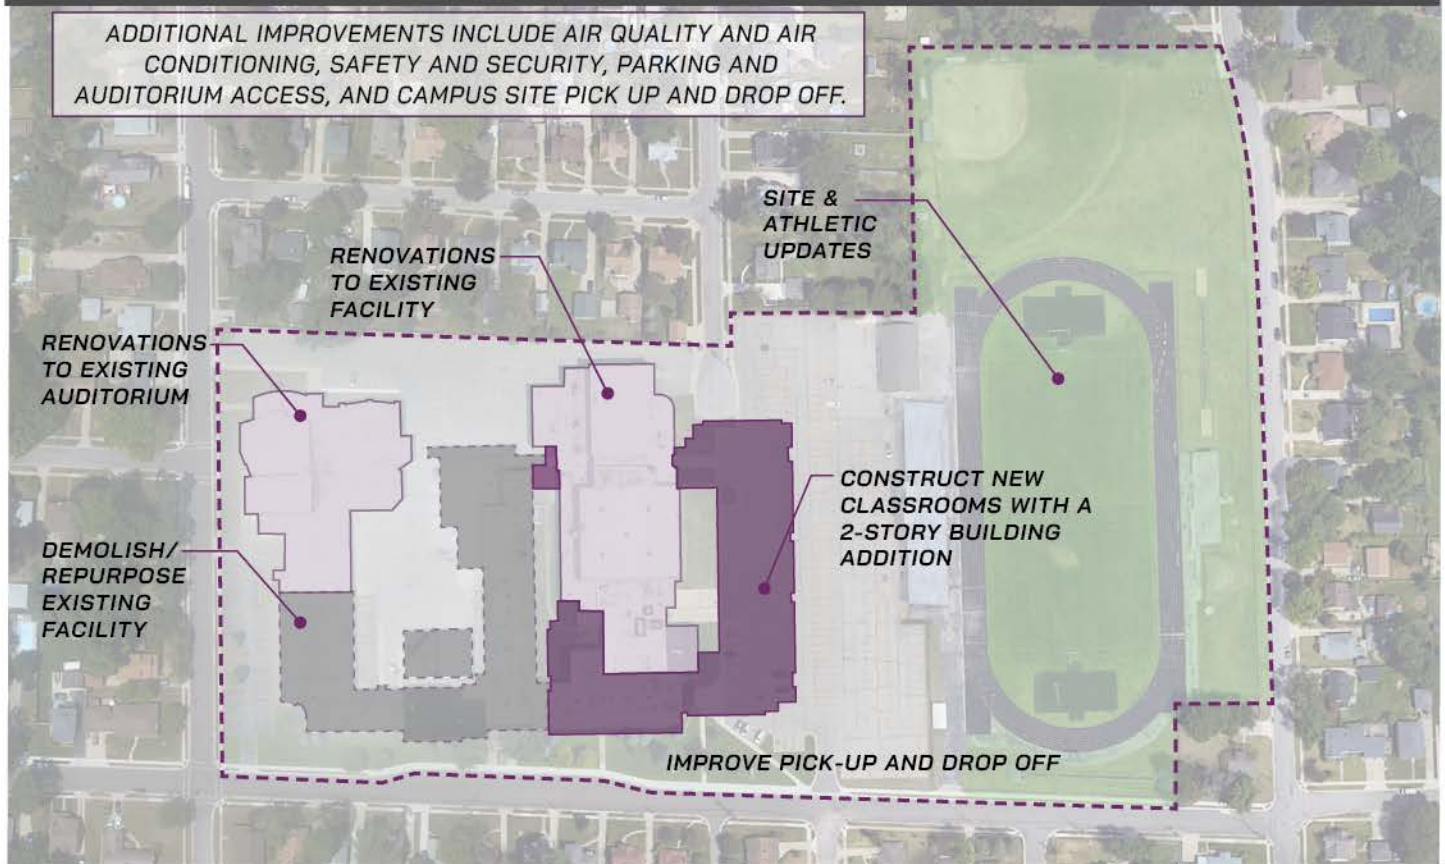

- Modern learning environments, new furniture, and integrated technology
- Adequate lab spaces and equipment
- Improved air quality
- Replacement of failing building systems (such as roofing, plumbing, and electrical) to become energy efficient and meet modern building codes
- Site improvements to traffic flow, aging parking lots, and athletic facilities

The Remarkable Results of the Completed High School

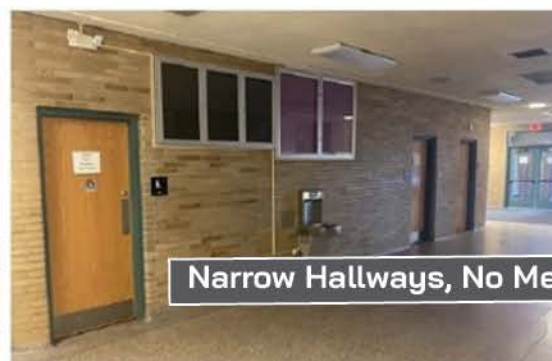

When our high school scholars first stepped into the newly renovated High School, they saw the cramped, dated classrooms and dark corridors had been transformed into open, inviting spaces filled with natural light. They freely moved through hallways that had been expanded into sizable areas designed for collaboration, gathered for lunch in the new cafeteria, and had access to upgraded technology in every classroom. And long after the final bell rang, they came back to enjoy football games and events on the revamped grounds.

While the High School has received the most dramatic makeover, our elementary schools are also being elevated into the twenty-first century.

Educators Rising Empowers Future Teachers

By Alexis Stark, School News Network for the complete article visit schoolnewsnetwork.org

Teacher John Doyle greets his students at the beginning of every class and asks them about the good things happening in their lives. The last class period of the day, his sixth-hour students take turns volunteering news about work, school, family and life. “You all have stories,” Doyle said. “You just don’t always get the chance to tell them, and when you’re a student, people don’t always ask.”

The class is called Educators Rising, in its first year being offered at Wyoming High School. It is part of a national effort that aims to help establish a pathway to careers in education. Doyle’s class of 18 mostly juniors and seniors in the semester-long elective learn about secondary education required to be a teacher, and the kinds of careers in education they can pursue. They also visit district elementary and middle school classrooms, as well as one class in their own school.

“Our primary goal for our students is to expose them to what a positive and exciting learning environment should look like, along with highlighting the importance and need for diverse, passionate students to one day have a potential opportunity to teach at Wyoming Public Schools,” Doyle said. “Today’s rising educator is tomorrow’s accomplished teacher.”

Jennifer Slinger, the district’s director of teaching and learning, said Doyle’s class provides an experience for students they may not otherwise encounter while exploring teaching as a career. “Knowing we are a very diverse school district, our hope is that through Mr. Doyle’s Educators Rising class, we will attract a diverse group of students who are interested in pursuing teaching as a career,” she said.

Back in his sixth-hour class, Doyle explained to students how they were to review the results from their first test. “We’re going to get out of here and circle up outside for conversation, a sharing circle,” he said. “Discussing our written responses together expands our understanding of the topics we’re learning.” If students learned something from a classmate’s test answers, Doyle encouraged them to take notes on their own tests to reflect on later.

One question read: “How do you want to be remembered as a teacher?” Senior Aja Miller raised her hand to share her answer. “I want to be remembered as a teacher who kids could come to anytime, with anything, and they feel welcome.” Junior Bryce Bosovich wanted to be remembered for being “strict when you have to be” and “compassionate to your students.”
